Transcript of Pre-Recorded World Satsanga by Guy Steven Needler:

"Welcome everybody to this World Satsanga held on the 29th of May 2021. And again I am grateful and thank Kevin Moore for the help he's got in broadcasting these Satsangas and of course doing his own work with the series of documentaries he's called "They Call Us The Channelers" and it's looking really good. There's a lot of detail there, a lot of data and lots of different qualities of individual and lots of different qualities of channeling as well. So I really do urge you to go visit his YouTube channel and check it out — Kevin Moore's documentary or a series of documentaries called "They Call Us Channelers" — lots of fantastic work.

Let's look at the agenda today. And the first part is a talk on "Why so many people are told they've been Jesus or some other famous people or have been associated with such people?" Then we'll go through the list of what's now three A4 pages of questions. And I hope we can go through those in as clear and concise way as possible or just pay attention to the fact that most of these are channeled on the spot, even though if it's an instantaneous answer, it's not me answering, it's coming from the Source. And the last fifteen minutes is a meditation to be one with everything or one and everything with the multiverse. Okay, I feel as if we all need to be one at the moment with all the things that are going on with the world right now.

Part 1. Lecture on "Why so many people are told they've been Jesus or some other famous people or have been associated with such people?"

Okay, so let's have a look at this thought process why so many people have been told they've been Jesus or some other famous people. Well, as most of you are aware, there is a function within the Source that we call the Akashic records. And the Akashic record isn't the only record, it's a record for every one of the different ways in which we can interact with an environment at a different frequency or in a different vehicle type or body type. So for every body type, there are all these civilizations, if we want to use those descriptions, there is a record for it. It's just that the one that's associated with the incarnate mankind is called the Akashic.

Now with this we have the opportunity to experience anything and everything without experiencing it first-hand. So a soul can enter into the Akashic records, and if they want to have an incarnation that gives them a level of experience, but they need to have additional experience to be able to experience that experience properly, they can enter into an existence that another aspect or soul has had in an incarnate state, experience it — I'm going to say — remotely, but as a download, for example, in its entirety and gain the same level of understanding. Obviously, it's not first-hand experience, but it is the same level of understanding. And then that experience is passed onto them, when they come into an incarnation.

So for instance, if they needed to have the experience of being able to sail a boat, to help them do something else, like diving, for example, then they would inherently know how to sail a boat and would be able to pick it up really easily. And then the experience of doing or learning how to dive, which they may not know about, would be assisted by this ability to understand how to work with boats. And it's the same with other things, like working with animals, working with the environment, being a great painter, pianist, cellist, being a drummer, mathematician, artist, and all these different things can assist in the way that we interact with our existing incarnation, but having assisted our desire for the interaction or for that gathering of that knowledge or that experience, while having other skills that we've gathered into us from the Akashic records, but not actually experienced ourselves as an incarnate soul.

Now then, what does this mean in terms of why so many people are told they've been Jesus or other famous people or been associated with famous people? What this means is that it's very likely or very possible that one of two things happened. Firstly, these people can experience being a disciple of Jesus or Mohammed or any of the important yogis within India by going to the Akashic records, so they can experience it for themselves what it's like to be a devotee, or what it's like to be a world leader, or what it's like to be a person of influence or a spiritual leader.

And so there are obviously individuals who are noted or marked individuals within the current understandable or recognized history of incarnate mankind that fulfill that requirement — Jesus being one of them, Mohammed being one of them, for example, and other notable individuals, John the Baptist, for example, Mary Magdalene, Confucius, etc., St. Germaine, Moses, all of these [people], the list can go on, even down to Alexander the Great.

So the ability to be part of that existence, but not actually have been part of the interaction, the physical interaction is down to us. So it's quite often that souls can come into an incarnation and when they go into hypnosis, which is Dolores Cannon's Quantum Healing Hypnosis Technique, or other forms of hypnosis, or they have a reading from somebody that they will have been told that, Oh, you've been associated with Jesus or you've been associated with Mohammed or you were part of the Second World War and you were with Montgomery, for example, right hand man. But actually, you weren't, but you've experienced that incarnation by going into the Akashic records, because the experience or the knowledge that's been accrued within that incarnation by another soul is going to help you in this incarnation. So that's why those pieces of information are coming through.

The second part of why a reading sometimes says that you've been a notable person or very close to a notable person is if the ability for the soul through being a higher frequency allows a higher level of bandwidth, communicative bandwidth, so it's possible that one of the aspects that are projected from our True Energetic Self, which we sometimes call our Godhead or Oversoul or Higher Self, could have projected another smaller aspect of itself into one of these bodies, that ends up being a notable person. And that information then is brought into our True Energetic Self and it's shared amongst the sentience, the individualized sentience that is us in this particular incarnate state.

And so we would share that which has been experienced by another part of our Higher Self or True Energetic Self/Godhead/Oversoul in a different individualized state. So everything that our True Energetic Self experiences through its projections into the gross physical or into the other frequencies within the physical universe is also passed on and shared to other parts of its sentience, which includes us.

The third way, which I didn't mention, as I mentioned two ways...the third way is in essence Source experiences everything as well. So as Source experiences everything, actually at a higher level, so do all the different True Energetic Selves/Godheads/Oversouls/Higher Selves also experience it, because we're all part of or a disseminated structured aspect of Source Entity sentience, so everything that is experienced by anything else that is Source, and that includes the True Energetic Selves and the projected aspects called the souls, and the shards, which is the sub-souls, is shared by everything else.

So although we have individualized, sort of personalized experiences that gain different levels of evolutionary progression, because we're experiencing things in different ways, which all adds to the overall evolutionary progression of Source, the ability to experience or have contact with that which is being experienced by another soul from another True Energetic Self is also possible on a very, very high level. And some individuals do pick this up, and some channelers or some mediums have the ability to and sometimes by quite an accident, they don't know they're doing it, is to go into or bypass some of the natural frequency level blockages — not actual blockages, but things that are created as a result of low frequency being here — and go straight to where the connections are and access that information. So we have the possibility there of passing information on from a higher level as well, which is again another reason why so many people can experience the possibility of being associated with a noted person.

And this is quite important to note that we can get it through the activities of the other aspects that are projected into the physical from our True Energetic Self, if they've experienced something else. We can get it from the Source, the overall knowledge that the Source has got, and we can also get it from the Akashic records directly before we incarnate to be able to help us. And so we can experience things like being close to any and all of the so-called famous individuals in Earth's history and of course, off Earth as well to be able to experience these things.

And this why so many people have been told they've been associated with Jesus or other famous people, like Mohammed, Confucius, Alexander the Great, you know, even people like Hitler or J. Edgar Hoover or other noted individuals in our past, you know, George Washington. This is because we can access the information quite readily, when we're in the energetic.

Okay, so let's move on to the questions. Let's start with the first question then, this is from EK.

Part 2. Questions and Answers

1. Is there a liberation of the planet happening at the moment with help from extraterrestrials? This is a common theme currently being told through the new age spiritual and UFO community. Does the Galactic Federation exist? Is it a true Federation? (EK)

Well, we are getting help, but the objective is not to do things for us, but moreover to help us help ourselves, so to speak. There's an old adage, which is a very famous adage, "Give a man a fish and you'll feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish or by giving them a fishing rod or even a line, etc., etc., and they'll feed themselves for the rest of their lives." So really the help we're getting is really about how we think, behave and act and expanding our acceptance of other form factors. And to be honest, the other form factors — there's lots of humanoid form factors here on Earth. We've got the Afro-Caribbeans, the White Europeans, American Indians, Chinese, Japanese variants of the Chinese, etc., etc., etc., even down to the Maoris in the Pacific and the Hawaiians as well.

So we can see, there are different variants of humanoid already. And the whole point of it, and some of these things that are happening today on the planet are trying to teach us to be in more acceptance of our diversity, and not think of ourselves as being a particular type of human being, but just being a soul that is using a human body as a vehicle to experience, learn and evolve. And basically, we're all one and the same thing. It's just that we have happened to have the honor of being incarnate. And it is honorable, irrespective of whether we have a particular skin color, a particular lineage, whether we're born with a disabled condition or what we think is a disabled condition or not. The whole point is we're honored to be able to be incarnate. And we're being helped to understand that. So the next part of this question is...

• Does the Galactic Federation exist? Is it a true Federation?

Well, again my understanding of this is — and this is a question that's being asked a couple of times — is that there are groups of, shall we say, incarnate civilizations — that means again that they're just a body type that is being used by souls to experience, learn and evolve — that have originated from different locations within the physical universe or even within the local galaxy and the different frequencies. And they all, depending upon their frequency and their ability to move around the galaxy or their ability to move around the wider universe, do in some respects group together to assist each other in the progress. And when they evolve to certain levels of understanding, they understand the real reason for our being here. And as a result of that, they help each other to experience, learn and evolve, doing everything that they can do rather than trying to, shall we say, "war" with each other, so to speak. So I hope that helps.

So just to answer the question, there are lots of different federations, depending upon the ability. Federations are groups. I think the word "group" is better, because "federation" sort of gives a strange sort of angle on what a group of sort of incarnate souls might be expected or would do.

(15 min) Okay, the next question is from GJ.

2. I recently discovered that Japanese fisheries are still engaging in the killing of dolphins, whales, and sharks en masse. There is a cove where some of this is happening regularly called "Taiji" (in Japan). I've heard you explain that the dolphins and whales are part of the few advanced civilizations that currently exist on earth. I am confused as to why this is being allowed to happen? Is there a larger purpose that we are unaware of? Does this have any effect on the combined frequential level of our current reality? (GJ)

It does have an effect on us. And yes, to be honest, we don't seem to have much problem killing each other in wars, do we, from a human perspective, let alone understanding the level of sentience involved with some of the animals that are on the planet. So these entities, because they exist with a higher level of evolutionary progression, or should I say sentience associated with being highly evolved whilst incarnate in a lower frequency, they understand that in sacrificing their physical form, that they are assisting in some small way in our ability to start to understand that the killing of any animal for food isn't necessary, and that all animals are sentient and have a level of sentience associated with them, because they are all individualized functions of their True Energetic Self, and as a result of that, they're all part of the Source.

So it's all part of letting us do something until we realize it's wrong. And that includes us killing ourselves in wars, for example. It seems quite bizarre from a human perspective, but that's what I'm picking up. Okay, the next question is from NS and this is quite a good question actually.

3. So, if guardian angels are our guides, then Kuan Yin, Merlin, Serapis Bey, Isis and such - whose Guides are they? Are they some sort of overall Guides for the humanity to help us with our growth or are they "just" our own Guides and helpers assuming the roles/ personalities/forms we react to and trust? And would dragons actually be Caretakers - Environment Specialists as they seem to be involved with taking care of the Nature? (NS)

Our helpers and our guides are a different group of entities. These entities that are being classified as Ascended Masters are simply that. They are aspects, who together with their True Energetic Self have ascended beyond the need to incarnate, but do desire to help us in some way. And they can do that from the energetic or by having temporary excursions into the lower physical. So basically, they are...you could almost call them Overall Guides, but they are moreover sort of...their souls are evolved or they've worked or navigated beyond the need to incarnate, but are assisting others to help us.

And that's the same with all of the Ascended Masters, although the so-called major ascended masters and the vast majority of the minor ascended masters, although you also have to understand that when a soul moves beyond the need to incarnate, it's got its other work to do. So these aspects or souls, who decide to stick around and help us to move through this hiccup we're having in understanding our own individualized free will is of benefit to everybody, provided we use it properly, and that we need to work with each other in a more caring, sharing and loving way is part of what they're doing for us.

And in terms of dragons, dragons exist in a different frequential level — still part of the physical universe, but they exist in a different frequential level. And I'm not picking up that they are Caretakers themselves so much, but they are more in tune with that type of work in the natural environment, whereas we seem to...some of us seem to be in tune with it and others don't, so it's quite a contrast there. But they're not Caretakers, although they support the maintenance of by their own natural interaction on their frequential level with the natural environment around them.

So they are...and also one of the things that we would note is that there are times, when some of the Caretakers who are working on the gross physical aspect of the universe and specifically where we are now on the Earth, they may well adopt an image or have an appearance that may well be interpreted by ourselves as being dragon-like. So sometimes there are Elementals, if you want to call them that — we sometimes call them pixies or fairies or leprechauns, etc. — that are interpreted as being human, but also aren't human. And sometimes those Elementals, when they're doing their work, they may have an appearance that is translated as being dragon-like, although they're not dragon-like. So this is something that we do tend to sort of translate ourselves, based upon what we've been educated in, whether it's been incorrect or correct education.

My understanding is dragons are basically a function of a slightly higher frequential level in the universe that we are existing within, and specifically within the set of fourth and fifth frequencies (FB 4-5), but are present not only on Earth, but on other locations as well. Okay, well, thank you for that question. Very good. The next one's from BA.

4. Why are people saying they can cure autism? Will this kind of protocol numb down the abilities or source connection of autistic kids or adults? If we are to reduce the anxiety in autistic person via homeopathy or herbalism, is that ok? (BA)

(20 min) You have to understand that the vast majority of the population of the Earth are blind. They're deaf, dumb and blind. They are immersed in their incarnate state. And so anything that is different to that is not natural. So people generally consider their immersed incarnate state as being the norm, and anything else needs to be "cured" to create the norm. So any drug-based therapies or anything else, even some forms of hypnosis that are designed to cut off the connectivity of what we call autistic individuals — that includes Down syndrome, etc. or Aspergers — is only going to stop them from functioning in the way they're supposed to be functioning.

So the answer is yes, there's no physical cure for autism, because autism isn't an issue. It's a function. It's a higher function, a higher frequential function that these children are experiencing, or I should say, the souls are experiencing in that particular body in that growth state. So why try to cure something that doesn't exist as a fault, other than mankind in its ignorance thinks because it's not what the general population are experiencing, then there's something wrong with it and therefore, it needs to be cured. So the answer is yes, if they try to cure it with chemicals or any other form of reprogramming in that way, then all they're going to do is stop those particular souls from functioning properly in those bodies. Next question.

• Is If we are to reduce the anxiety in autistic person via homeopathy or herbalism, is that ok??

The only way to really reduce anxiety in autistic individuals is to understand them and work with them on their level, because they're communicating with us on multiple energetic levels as well as the gross physical five senses. So trying to work with them with homeopathy or herbalism is simply trying to apply a physical medication that is not too far removed from the western medicine side of things.

Homeopathy, if used properly, may or could be used to let them know who they are, because the right homeopathic treatments would augment their connectivity. And somebody who is working with them, who can say: "Well, you need to understand that what you're experiencing is real for you and is a real human response, but that 99.9% of the current population of the Earth are not switched on as you guys." Then the homeopathy might assist in reducing the anxiety.

But my feeling is that something like Psycho-Spiritual Programming would reduce the anxiety together with the interaction with the people who understand them and can support their thought process and justify their thought process to them, and that would reduce the anxiety that they feel, because the anxiety is about not being accepted, not being unaccepted, so to speak.

Okay, next a group of questions — I think there is actually twelve questions here from WP, so we will move on.

5. Is the evolution of a TES dependent on the evolution of its individual aspects? Is a TES's current place in the Multiverse dependent upon its evolution? ie. Some TES's are more evolved than others and so reside in the higher frequency universes? (WP)

Very simply. The TES, although it does depend upon the evolutionary progression of its individual aspects, also evolves on its own right. So it's a codependent system there. And the location within the multiverse is dependent upon its evolution, because the multiverse is a metric for evolutionary progression as well as being an environment for evolutionary experiential experience, and therefore, for progression as well.

And yes, there are different locations that TESs are located within based upon their evolution, so some are more evolved than others. How fast we evolve is not an issue. It's how we do it that counts. And everybody is doing it in a different way. So no matter whether one is faster than another or one is higher than another, it's evolving. It is the collective evolutionary level and the experiential content associated with getting that, or what leads to that evolutionary level, which is important. And so yes, they are dotted all over the frequential levels of the multiverse. Yeah, without a doubt. Nobody's in the same place. Although clearly there are some individuals, True Energetic Selves that are in the same frequential level, and therefore, within the same universe within the multiverse. But everyone is doing it in their own way.

• Did all TES's begin at the same level and have all had to create Earth bound (or equivalent) aspects to evolve?

Yes, basically, not just on Earth, of course. We, the projected aspects of the True Energetic Self we call the soul, can go in any location within the physical universe within any frequency.

• If so, did those TES's at the higher level frequency universes that no longer need to incarnate graduate from Earth (physical universe) at some time in the past?

Yes, although it has been recognized that Earth with our individualized free will here is basically an evolutionary accelerant. Not all aspects and therefore True Energetic Selves have moved on upwards in the frequencies or evolved upwards in frequencies as a function of simply being on Earth. It is possible to experience evolution at any frequential level clearly within the physical universe and not specifically on Earth. It's just that the Earth gives a higher level of evolutionary progression, because of the individualized free will we have. Okay, the next part.

- Looking at the 397 level Multiverse, it appears that a high percentage of all TES's no longer need to incarnate and that a much smaller percentage are still creating Aspects for the purpose of incarnation. Does that mean that we are the laggards?

No, think of it in these terms. If we have to go from point A to point B, let's say we have to fly to New York from Los Angeles, we can travel there in multiple different ways. We can fly there and we can get there in a few hours and we've done the job. We've moved from point A to point B. — the traveling from New York, for instance, to Los Angeles being the goal. However, we can do it by flying there, that's the fast way or we can do a more in-depth version, which is driving there or going on a train or going on a Greyhound bus or hitchhiking or push biking there or going on a motor cycle. Okay, or we can go a certain distance and stay there two or three months. You could argue that the one is slower than the other, but one also gives a greater depth of detail of understanding and experience than the others.

(30 min) And this is fine. This is perfectly okay, because we're experiencing it in a different way. The whole point is we don't try to copy each other, but although we might be doing something similar, if we do anything in a slightly different way, that gives a depth of detail and a depth to the quality of evolutionary progression that we're having. So I hope that answered that question.

- When a TES creates an aspect to incarnate in the Physical Universe, I assume we are talking about the Earth as well as countless other "earths" in the physical universe?

Yes, we don't just incarnate on Earth. We incarnate in other locations within the first three frequencies, and other locations within the other frequencies associated with the physical universe, which is frequency band 4 through to FB 12. So we can incarnate anywhere. Clearly though, the higher the frequency we incarnate in, the more diffuse or the closer to the energetic that that particular incarnate vehicle becomes. So yes, there's countless other planets — call them planets or I like to call them locations of local density.

- Do TES's create Aspects to incarnate on the higher frequencies of the Physical Universe, on higher frequency Universes?

Our TESs do project aspects of itself to the higher frequencies of the physical universe and they also project aspects of themselves into other universes that are classified as being energetic, which are obviously the 13th universe up to the 397th. But the thing is that when we're incarnated into the lower frequencies, the ability to experience is more difficult, because of the lower frequencies — the ability to know who and what we are and the ability to navigate through the incarnation is more difficult, so we gain more evolutionary progression by working with lower frequencies than we do with higher frequencies.

That doesn't mean to say we all crowd into the lower frequencies, but what it means is that we do move around. We experience one frequency level, then another frequency level, then we might go back to the first one in terms of experiencing how to experience it in a specific environment, the circumstances within the environment created by those other incarnate aspects that are working with that environment as well. So TESs do create other aspects to incarnate into the higher frequencies of the physical universe and in the other universes as well within the multiverse. Yes, they do.

- When we say that us Aspects have had many lives, that implies that when the body dies, we do not remerge with our TES but maintain our individual Aspect sentience awaiting the next incarnation or do we do both, remerge but also maintain our individual Aspect sentience? Do us Aspects only remerge with our TES after we graduate from incarnating altogether?

Well, merging is what I would call communion. And an aspect can enter into a number of different states of communion, which range from remaining projected and having full individuality whilst still being connected with the True Energetic Self to totally reintegrating with the True Energetic Self and the individuality being diffused into just collectiveness, so to speak. And that collectiveness can be reassigned as being individuality should the True Energetic Self decide to do so.

So if you go onto the website and look at the Events and Lectures, you'll see that there's a number of different pdf files that you can just download for free, and one of them is "Who We Are and How We Incarnate" — and if you look at that, you'll see that there's about six different ways in which we can be individualized or in reconnection with our True Energetic Self after we finish with a particular incarnation. So depending upon us as individualized aspects, our own desires or the desire of our True Energetic Self depends upon how we reconnect with it. And we can enter into a level of communion, which is within the energies and the sentience of the True Energetic Self, and it can be diffuse but still individualized or it could be totally diffused into being oneness.

(35 min) Read or look at those...I've tried to in the blog or the emails, hopefully in the transcript I'll send the links to this, so you can look at them and download them. They're free downloads, so just download them. They're only a pdf file. And sometimes if you look at on YouTube, you might find that there might be snippets of some of those lectures there or a full lecture there with me lecturing them there as well, so I'll send or leave that link for you as well.

- Do we as Aspects have a sex or are we just occupying a body that has a sex? How do we account for a gay person in the opposite sex body? Do TES's have a sex - I think not?

No, duality is only a function of the physical universe. And the ability to reproduce the body, so that souls can continue to come and experience is a function of the bringing together of the two opposites, because although at one point the human form was hermaphroditic, it became, shall we say, contaminated by various different things, as we moved down the frequencies. So it became more robust to have two components that would get together and allow the diversity of physicality to merge together, so that those gross physical forms when they were conceived and gestated became more resilient to some of the things that happened to us, when we moved down the frequencies.

And people who are either in same sex marriages or same sex relationships, it's simply because they either find more camaraderie with same sex souls, or there is a memory of being in a previous body and a desire to be in that body whilst being in the body that they're in, or there's been in a multitude of incarnations in one form factor, one body type, and then they suddenly find themselves in a completely different body type, so it becomes a bit confusing. But it's not an issue really, it's the experience that counts. And that experience means that those souls also are evolving as well. And you know, there's a lot...you sometimes find that same sex relationships or even neuter sex relationships, for example, are sometimes more fulfilling than opposite sex relationships, because they are in tune with each other, and it's the being in tune that counts at the end of the day.

- Concerning the Masters, the Earth was visited by Buddha, Jesus, Mohammad approximately 500 years apart, no such visitations for the past 1500 years. Why not? (St. Germaine, 400 years ago, but had much less impact, others? but if so minimal impact). It seems that a master such as Jesus would not go through all of the effort 2000 years ago only to see mankind misuse and abuse his incarnation, ignore his message or at least obscure it through the church over the centuries and not follow up on what he started. Where is the aspect Jesus now? What does he think about this? Or was he one and done and now remerged into his TES?

Basically, we've answered the question where Jesus is before, and the TES can move around basically. The aspect that we call Jesus was simply a body that's got a soul of a higher level of evolution used to give us the opportunity to understand how to exist in a or to navigate around incarnation in a really efficient way, and therefore, don't accrue karma. And of course, the Buddha has done a similar thing, and Mohammed's done a similar thing, and Confucius has done a similar thing, and St. Germaine has done a similar thing.

(40 min) But it was seen in my understanding that we were starting to understand and move forwards. And so the need for visible or should we say focus on one particular individual as being a major mover and shaker wasn't necessary — Jesus being an example. So we have people like Babaji, like Yogananda, other people around the world who are spiritual leaders, for instance, Gandhi for example, and other notable individuals, who have made a difference and making us think, but aren't, shall we say, so visible as Jesus or Mohammed or Buddha would have been. So there's still the help being there, but not so visible.

I mean Babaji, for example, works in the background. And a lot of other individuals work in the background as well. And so they are there, but they realize that the ability to be able to do things in an effective way doesn't necessarily mean they have to be so visible that it causes a stir. Sometimes causing a stir causes more confusion than if things happen in the background. So right now, because of the population of the Earth being as big as it is, it makes more sense to work in little groups of people, so that the groups disseminate the information themselves through triangulation rather than trying to create one particular sort of hit.

I mean Greta Thunberg, for example, is becoming quite a notable individual for making us work with our environment in a better way. And you can see the amount of pressure that is being put on her from groups of individuals, who don't see the need to look after the world, for example, because they only see it in terms of greed and money. So it's difficult for Greta Thunberg to do her job properly, because she's so visible. Now she's doing a superb job and there will be others like her. They're the White Children like her, but they're not all going to be quantitative. Some of them will be qualitative leaders and again another group of them will be in the background, doing things in the background to move things in a subliminal way rather than a very much in your face way.

So to answer the question, the aspect that is Jesus has basically done his job, as has the Buddha and Mohammed. But there is still help from those aspects or souls who are highly evolved, who are moving things in a way, which is more consistent with or more compatible with where we are now as a race of incarnate entities, so to speak.

- Who was Apollonius of Tyana (apparently a contemporary of Jesus with “mystical powers”) and why wasn't he made out to be God as Jesus was?

I've never heard of that name, to be honest. I'm going to have to meditate and connect. What I've been told here is that he was a contemporary of Jesus and he was taught in the same way as Jesus was with the Essenes. And his role was fairly similar to Babaji's. It was to show that things are possible, but do it in the background. So whereas Jesus was a quantitative teacher, clearly with good connections to Source, Appolonius was really a qualitative/in the background type of teacher, and so this is why he didn't receive the same amount of, shall we say, marketing, so to speak, and has therefore, drifted into the backs of people's memories and the backs of history, and therefore, being forgotten. Okay, because there's lots of others like that as well, by the way, who have helped us and who have been noted and have been forgotten over the centuries and over the thousands of years sometimes.

- When an Aspect creates a Shard, how is that done? Is the Aspect consciously aware of such creation?

(45 min) The shards are created whilst the aspect is in the energetic. The desire to create smaller versions of itself to experience, learn and evolve in a more parallel way is something that's decided in the energetic. So as a function of moving here into lower frequencies, we do tend to lose that connectivity, because we start to become associated with the human form, because we, as an individualized unit of sentience, we are very much compartmentalized in the human form, and during the gestation period and the birth and the first few years, we experience such levels of poor connectivity that we start to relate to ourselves as being the human form.

So basically, we would forget that we created a shard or shards. But when the aspect returns to the energetic, it recognizes those shards and they're regathered into it. In fact, shards only exist as long as the aspect is incarnate or is individualized. So when the aspect moves back into the energies, it is more often the case that those incarnate shards, if they haven't already finished their incarnation, will have that incarnation terminated, so to speak, and move back into the aspect.

- Was the physical universe and the Aspects that have inhabited it created purposefully? Are Aspects lack of awareness of who they are, where they came from, where they are going, their purpose, their lack of spiritual awareness - left to ponder the imponderable throughout the ages by design as a means to experience, learn and evolve? Or was it that Aspects forgot who they are along the way becoming enamoured with the physical, accruing Karma which then necessitated reincarnation to eventually "remember" their origin and graduate from the physical?

Basically, an aspect always remembers who and what it is when it's back in the energetic, because of the increase in the communicative bandwidth, full stop. As we move into the higher frequencies, it's like remembering who and what we are. It's like coming out of being in a state of amnesia, so to speak. There's no aspect who forgets who and what it is.

There are aspects who are temporarily in forgetfulness, when their physical form demises, because they get addicted to being on the Earth and they want to stay with the Earth, so they resist the opportunity of moving back to the energetic. And some of those are classified as ghosts or poltergeists, etc. And some of them just hang around or create their own environment, because we can create anything, when we are in the energetic. And they create what they expect to see or be and they create continuity with what they were before their physical body demised.

But every one of them — obviously, if they're attached to or addicted to and wanting to feel physicality, then that's karma basically. But eventually, every aspect will be assisted back into the energetic and into remembering who and what they are. And so they will all eventually know who and what they are and regain their knowledge base and the connectivity with their True Energetic Self, go through their life plan, etc., with their guide and helpers, and eventually plan another incarnation. There is no soul that is left behind. There is no soul that is left pondering as to what they are or left ignorant as to who and what they are. Every soul goes back to a level of frequential existence that allows them to either reacquaint with their True Energetic Self or become more aware of who and what they are and then continue.

- It utterly amazes me that the history of humankind is so pathetic and that such a race is necessary to accomplish our SE's purpose. Did the SE expect this or is this all part of It knowing Itself?

Everything that happens within the multiverse is a function of the Source giving us all free range to do what we want to do. In doing so, it is getting a multipolous (that's a big word, isn't it?) way of experiencing things concurrently. We, even when doing things that we feel are wrong or are inappropriate or are inefficient are creating the ability to have a complete level of experience, and therefore, a complete depth of experience, which gives a complete high quality of evolutionary progression.

(50 min) So although it seems that humankind is being pathetic in its learning ability to respect and love each other, the process that we're going through gives a depth of experience, which is giving it like a holistic level of understanding. A holistic level of experiential progression. A holistic knowledge base. A holistic level of evolution, which if we all wanted to experience the "good" side, we wouldn't be doing.

The benefit of the Source letting everything happen is that everything happens. And if it controlled it, it would be controlled. A controlled situation is a slow way of evolving. Letting things happen randomly, which is basically what it is as a function of us having our own individualized free will or not in other areas of the physical universe, or when we're in the energetic, allows us to experience things in a complete way concurrently rather than really doing things in the preferred way. Doing things in a preferred way is fine, when we start to understand how to incarnate and how to navigate around incarnation at a level that allows us to do what we need to do and to get out.

But until we can do that, we're experiencing things in a way, which appears to be completely random or sometimes inappropriate or sometimes not liked or loved, but it's allowing us to experience it holistically, and that's what Source wants. That's what Origin wants — it wants to have everything, not just the good bits and certainly not just the bad bits, it wants everything.

- Breaking from past practice, apparently the US Government will be releasing a comprehensive report on high levels of recent UFO activity observed through various means by the military. Some say this is a massive intelligence failure on the part of the government as they have no worldly explanation for this nor what to do about it, if anything. So, what's new, what's different about this activity compared with historical activity?

Forget the words UFO. Forget the words government. It's all about the start of us being transparent with each other. And when we start to be transparent with each other, we start to understand more. We start to trust each other more. We start to work with each other more in a loving and caring and sharing way. So all of these things that are being held back are starting to become public, and so everything is considered to be equal and honest in the same way.

So it's rather than being associated with a particular government, we have to think of it in terms of our ability to be transparent with each other. And understand that each of us should experience what each and every one of us needs to experience, would experience or can experience and does experience in the energetic, because there's nothing hidden in the energetic. Everything is experienced. Everything is experienced concurrently by each other at a high level.

Or we can go into the Akashic records, as I've previously stated, and we can experience it second hand as if it's us doing it, but it's actually another entity has experienced it, and we are having a fully immersive experience, which gives us the same level of ability or the same level of experience to allow us to do other experiences that we couldn't do without these primary experiences being in place. It's a bit like building the tools to build the tools to build the tools.

Okay, that's a good set of questions WP. Thank you very much. And now we've got a few more questions. One is from EM and it goes this way...

6. My question is this: What will or could happen when humanity realizes that the reason for our existence is for the Origin to know itself? We desire to have consciousness and it seems that at some point we may get there, so if that were to happen how may we react to it, and what could happen to us subsequently and also to Origin? (EM)

Well, let's look at this way. When we start to understand who and what we are, the awareness of it is going to grow. It won't be instantaneously, it'll be growing organically, if you want to use a word that is popular. And so we will start to understand that we are not individual, but we are part of a bigger entity, that we are aspects of a True Energetic Self, which are aspects of our Source, which are aspects of Origin.

(55 min) This will be a profound level of understanding, because right now we fear loss of individuality. Death is a loss of individuality, so to speak. So when we start to understand that we're parts of something bigger, and therefore, although we are individualized, we may enter back into full communion, which is full integration, lack of individuality, and we desire this, then it doesn't matter about maintaining individuality. And being part of our True Energetic Self, which becomes part of Source, which becomes part of the Origin will be desired.

And so recognition that we're all One in actuality will make a profound level of response into how we would interact with each other, because then we'll find out that actually, that person that we thought was our neighbor next door is actually us. That person that we thought was a rich person in a different country is us. That person that we thought is on the poverty line in another country is actually us. When we realize that everything is us and we are everything, then it will be a different kettle of fish, and we'll be able to respond in a different, more caring and sharing way. Good question.

7. Why did earlier hominids like Neanderthals and Homo Erectus exist? What were their roles/reasons for being here? Were they connected to humans in any significant spiritual way, like a sort of prelude? Were their egos like ours, and did they reincarnate like we do? If so, what was it about the physical that they wanted to experience? Are some still reincarnating as humans today? (AB)

The physical forms that we've gone through are based upon the moving of the frequencies in a downward way. So the human form was a much higher frequency than it is now, when we first started to use it. And it had to be modified through the use of other incarnate entities to help out, to modify the genome, for example, and also importing different similar body types from different locations around the universe or around the galaxy but on a similar frequential level.

And so the form factor that we classify as being Homo erectus or Neanderthal or even ape is immaterial. It's just that that was used at the time for us to incarnate into, because it was more appropriate and more effective and efficient in how it interacted with the frequencies of the day.

You may think, Well, a Neanderthal was part of a lower frequency? Maybe not. Maybe it was a form factor that we took onboard, to enable us to experience lower frequencies, but was also actually able to cope with changes in frequency, so we could experience high higher frequential existences and also the changes and the dips in frequency that are sometimes destructive and sometimes cause differences in our ability to interact with each other.

So my feeling is that it was simply a different body type that was used, and that ended up being superseded as a function of our starting to work with each other in a more cohesive way whilst still not quite getting the idea of being connected or maintaining our frequencies to a level that we are connected to Source. We don't lose that connection to Source, but that allows us to maintain a high level of communicative ability and know who and what we are whilst incarnate.

- Are some still reincarnating as humans today?

Well, there are definitely some physically genetic traits, that are the progression of the Darwinian evolution, so to speak, of the human form, of that particular human form from then to now that you'd classify as being sort of Homo erectus or Neanderthal based genome. Just look at the way people are and you'll see that there are various different genomes, that have progressed and that are continued to being used now.

But it's the soul that counts and the bodies are there as just the vehicle to experience, learn and evolve in these low frequencies. So really it doesn't matter what they look like or when they were, it's the fact that they were a vehicle and that they were available to us. That's what counts.

- If what we call death really occurs when a soul goes from the energetic to the physical, then does a soul which is in the energetic experience trepidation, fear, or even terror right before it incarnates into the physical?

So this is basically turning around that what we call death is basically incarnation, and what we call birth is actually going back into the energetic. My knowledge and experience suggests that souls are excited about becoming incarnate. We very quickly forget the trials and tribulations we've had in previous incarnations. We move on quite quickly, and we become very enthusiastic about another incarnation.

So the knowledge base of who and what we are is a function of the frequencies and our lack of communicative bandwidth is sort of taken in its stride, and as a result, there is no trepidation. It's sort of, Great, having a chance of incarnating at a lower frequency, so we can evolve faster! So it's more about motivated excitement rather than trepidation or fear. Well, I hope that helps. It's probably going to create a bit of a stir to think that as souls we're thinking in that way, but we do.

(1 hr) When we're in the energetic, things that we think are horrible here are just a passing, split moment. And things like dying in an accident or in a war or a plane crash or cancer or Covid-19 are simply a way of moving out of one incarnation and coming back into the energetic, where we normally belong. It's just considered a termination point, a termination juncture and nothing to be even worried about. It's like turning off the switch on a TV. Simple as that.

Next one, MO and this is the lovely lady that is doing the translations of the books into Japanese, so these should be really good questions.

8. Some karma (thoughts, behavior, and action) are deeply rooted within ourselves that they are difficult to realize and remove. Would you share some (relatively) easy ways that we can realize them, sever links and remove karma on our own without having to ask for help from spiritually advanced individuals? (MO)

Yeah, basically, use the observer self. The observer self is us analyzing ourselves, standing away from ourselves in a neutral way, nonjudgmental way, and just seeing how we've responded to something. So when we interact with somebody or something or an environment, and we could have done better, we should say: Okay, well, I could have done that better. A better way of doing it would have been this way or that way.

And the next time we enter into a similar circumstance, a sort of similar environment or a similar interaction with that environment or individuals within an environment or similar circumstance within the environment, (a lot of words there without breathing). If we think, Well, okay, the last time I was in a similar situation, I did this. I thought I could do this better by doing that. Let's do that instead. So we can do that, but we need to give ourselves time to think and remember what we thought our more efficient interaction or thought, behavior and action was, rather than allowing ourselves to sort of drift into it.

So the observer self is without a doubt the best tool. But we need to use it on a 24/7 basis. And not chastise ourselves for going down the same road two or three times, because the thing is it's about understanding sometimes that there are times, when we forget. There are times, when we don't recognize the loop we're in. There are times we don't recognize that we're in a spiral, because we get sucked into it and we start to act in an immersed way. So we have to be sort of kind to ourselves, and realize that sometimes it takes a few times to learn a lesson. It takes a few times to interact in the correct way. That means that we don't have to experience certain things again and again and again.

Okay, so it's the observer self. Observe ourselves in a neutral, loving, nonjudgmental way, and make a note of how we've responded. And if we think it's optimal, great. If we think we can improve next time, then make a point of how it would improve in a similar circumstance next time. And that's the way forwards. Okay, I hope that helps.

- Quartz crystals have so many variation in color, and healers are using each quartz for different purposes. Sometimes I wonder about their use. What is the relationship between the color and healing properties of crystals? What is the mechanism behind their functions?

In general, quartz crystals are of a similar or same frequenting state. Or should I say, their function is of a certain and similar frequencies or certain or similar functions, depending upon how they are programmed. The colors don't have an awful lot of an effect, other than that some of the colors do, shall we say, limit the function of a crystal or its ability to work with certain frequencies. So they're a bit like a governor — they govern the ability of the crystal to work in a certain way.

So but really, any crystal, once you understand what its limitations are or governance is, can be used for anything. So although people say, Oh, amethysts, a purple amethyst is very good for healing, that's because their frequencies are usually governed to a sort of higher level, because of their colors. But in real terms, you could use them for other things, like helping you to remember your dreams or what you've been doing, when you're astral traveling when you're sleeping.

Every crystal can be programmed to do anything really. It's just that the level of efficiency of that crystal to work with different frequencies is affected by the color of, which is a function of their mineral make up, so to speak. So my feeling and my experience with crystals is that although some of them are predisposed to having certain functions, actually you can pretty much program a crystal to do whatever you want to, if you know what you're doing and you're in tune with the crystal, because crystals sometimes have a natural function, irrespective of their color.

Some of them are good for, you know, cleansing livers. Some of them are good for remembering transcendental experiences. Some of them are good for calming people down. Some of them are good for assisting in healing. Some of them are good for amplifying healing or amplifying certain frequencies. Naturally. But those crystals can be changed by a good, knowledgeable individual cleansing them of that natural programming or that pre-programming and then giving them another program that you can work with, based upon their limitations in terms of the bandwidth of frequencies that they can work with.

- Morion quartz (black quartz crystal) seem to have distinctly different qualities than clear quartz or any other quartz. Would you ask our SE "on what level(s)" morion quartz works and its proper usage?

Well, again the color of the crystal limits or governs the frequencies it can operate with. So if I ask what morion crystals are good at? Let me ask the question. I'm just being told, they're good for slowing the body's metabolism down. Things like reducing blood pressure, for example So in this instance, you can use them for working with blood pressure and working with heart issues in terms of circulation, yeah. Blood pressure, heart issues. They're good at creating calmness. They're good at creating a good, neutral energy in a space that people use together.

For instance, if you're doing a workshop, if you put morion crystals in each of the corners of the workshop of the space you're using, the room, then it would create a calmness effect naturally. So they're a natural calming energy. Okay, as I said before, in general, all crystals can be programmed to do anything. It's just that the color has some minor effect on the frequencies that they are best or more efficient in working with. That's probably the best way of saying it, isn't it? Things like amber, that's also a good crystal. That's also a good calming energy.

(1:10) So crystals and minerals, they all have a function they work with, and depending upon their make up they have a predisposition to working more efficiently with some frequencies than others, although all crystals can be programmed to do everything.

Okay, so that's all the questions, which is brilliant.

Part 3. Meditation

So let's have a look at the meditation now and go through the meditation, which is a meditation to be one and everything with the multiverse. So I think we really need to do this, don't we? Because we need to be one, and we need to understand that we're all one and we're together.

(1:11) Please download the high quality MP3 File to do the guided meditation with Guy Steven Needler via his website or blog (meditation starts at around 1 hr 11 min).

(1:25) Closing comments: Thank you for tuning in and participating in this particular Satsanga on the 29th of May 2021. And I'm looking forward to seeing you all, feeling you all in the next Satsanga, which is going to be on the 26th of June 2021. So namaste to you all, God's love to you all and go in peace and stay safe." END
